DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 5,949,939 to Kyoya in view of U.S. Patent 6,558,048 to Kuhara et al. Kyoya discloses a laser diode (1) emitting an optical signal, an optical fiber (F) and a lens sleeve (3) interposed between the diode and the fiber so to optically connect the two elements. (Figure 1)

Kyoya fails to disclose the light-emitting element to have a small emission angle between 15 to 25 degrees and around 18 degrees. However, Kuhara et al also discloses a laser diode module with similar components. Kuhara et al further discloses a laser diode with a smaller aperture angle such as an SSC-LD (E) having an angle of 20 degrees would give a stronger light power to the fiber. (Column 16) Furthermore, Applicant states on page 11 of the specification that with a smaller emission angle, a higher intensity output can be obtained. Since Kyoya does not further detail or limit the characteristics of the laser diode and Kuhara et al and Applicant disclose a laser diode having a small emission angle for the same purpose, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to have used a laser diode with a small emission angle between 15 to 25 degrees, and around 18 degrees.

Kyoya also fails to disclose the optical fiber to be movable relative to the lens sleeve. However, Kyoya discloses the optical fiber to be removably fixed, meaning the optical fiber can be moved and removed before being fixed into a desired position. Therefore, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to be able to move the optical fiber relative to the lens sleeve.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 5,949,939 to Kyoya in view of U.S. Patent 6,558,048 to Kuhara et al and in further view of U.S. Patent 5,537,503 to Tojo et al. Kyoya and Kuhara et al disclose all discussed above but fail to disclose the optical fiber to include a glass fiber. However, Tojo et al discloses a similar laser diode module with an optical fiber. Tojo et al further discloses the optical fiber to be a glass fiber. (Column 5) Therefore, since Kyoya and Kuhara et al does not further detail or limit the characteristics of glass fibers and glass fibers are commonly used in the art as shown by Tojo et al, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to have used a glass fiber.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

The documents submitted by applicant in the Information Disclosure Statements have been considered and made of record. Note attached copies of forms PTO-1449.
